the determination of hydrogen ions an elementary treatise on the hydrogen electrode indicator and supplementary methods with an indexed bibliography The concentration of hydrogen peroxide (H₂O₂) in distilled water, drinking water and in different types of surface and rain waters can be easily determined by a photometric method in which N,N-diethyl-p-phenylenediamine (DPD) is oxidized by a peroxidase catalyzed reaction. DPD is available as a commercial reagent. In all waters its oxidation occurs with a stoichiometric factor of 2.0 and ...
